

Oak Mazegill Daedalea quercina [Phillips(2006) p314] [ECSS visit No.37].
Common, on dead deciduous wood, generally oak, from spring onwards. Flesh pale wood-coloured, smell faintly acrid or fungus. The pores are large and maze-link resembling gills! Not edible.

